

“I don’t need a will”!

...or perhaps you do!

“My wife will get it all!”

Dependent on your assets your wife may get everything, but would you wish to take the chance she might not?

“Solicitors charge huge fees to make a will!”

Solicitors often charge less than banks and will writing companies. We will give you a written quote for the work before we start. Like many solicitors, we may be able to offer wills at no cost to you, with a charity paying the fees in the hope that you leave the charity something in your will.

“I have nothing to leave!”

Even if you think you have nothing at the moment, your circumstances can change through an inheritance or even a win on the lottery!

“Wills are very complicated and written in legal jargon!”

Wills sometimes contain “legal jargon” to ensure that your wishes are carried out correctly, but we will help you understand exactly what it means in plain English.

“My partner knows what I want and will sort it all out!”

No matter how long you have lived together, if you are not married or in a civil partnership, the intestacy rules mean that your partner will get nothing from you.

“I have fallen out with one of my children and don't want him to have anything of mine”

Sadly, we see many family disputes. Your solicitor will be able to advise how best to ensure your wishes are carried out, and also advise on the claims family members, even if estranged, may have on your estate.

“My friend has said she will look after the children if anything happens to us”

Appointing a guardian in a will ensures that your wishes are clear and will help avoid family disputes.

“They say death and taxes are the only things you cannot avoid”

A specialist solicitor will help you plan affairs to ensure that any inheritance tax is minimised.

“I want to ensure our children will inherit if my husband remarries after I have died”

We will be able to draw up a will that protects the family assets if the survivor of you remarries or has to go into a care home.

“I have no family - I do not know where to leave my money”

Your solicitor will be able to discuss these issues with sensitivity. Gifts in wills are an important source of income for charities and your gift can make a real difference. You may also wish to remember those who have been kind to you in your lifetime.

“I want to be buried with my parents”

Funeral wishes are important and can be included in your will.

“I made a will 20 years ago”

Once you have made a will it is important to review it regularly to ensure it still meets your wishes. Whilst wills don't go out of date, your circumstances may have changed.

Contact a specialist lawyer at Farnfields who will talk through the process of making a will and give you a firm quotation for the cost before starting work.

We are happy to visit you in your home if it is difficult for you to get to the office.

We will be able to advise you on the matters you should consider and send you a draft will with a clear explanation in plain English of what it means.

We will draw up the final will for signature, witness it, then we will send you a copy and keep the original in safekeeping at no extra charge.

Our friendly lawyers will put you at ease and explain everything clearly using plain English.
